SUBJECT: 2015 Call for ARMD Associate Administrator Awards

I am pleased to announce the fifth annual ARMD Associate Administrator Awards. This letter opens the call for nominees for fiscal year 2015. The ARMD Associate Administrator awards are across five distinct categories, each intended to recognize the essential contributions of one part of the ARMD team. This award recognizes the individual and group contributions across NASA Centers that lead to achievement of NASA's mission.

AWARD CATEGORIES:

- Technology and Innovation – Exemplary performance by an individual or group that results in significant unique or innovative technical research concepts and technologies that position ARMD, NASA, and the aeronautics community and industry for success in addressing national challenges. This category would also include test and evaluation contributions.
- Leadership and Management Excellence - Exemplary performance by an individual in leading and managing people in the formulation and accomplishment of disciplined research in the field of aeronautics, demonstrating leadership qualities that invite collaboration and foster dedication to team excellence. Leaders of ARMD-related research activities take action to allow others to grow and foster sense of pride and accomplishment in achieving the mission of ARMD.
- Program and Mission Support - Exemplary performance by an individual or group to provide non-technical mission support to aeronautics research programs, projects, and related activities that significantly improves and streamlines the efficiency and effectiveness of operations. This could be in functions typically associated with the NASA Mission Support Directorate (procurement, HR, policy/evaluation, etc), or other support activities such as resources management, IT, legal counsel, communications, education, legislative affairs, administrative support, etc. These efforts enable the successful completion and advancement of significant program goals that otherwise may not have been achieved without such support.
- High Potentials Award - Exemplary performance by an individual student, intern, or someone in the first 5 years of their federal service career that have made significant contributions to the advancement of aeronautics research and that have clearly demonstrated high potential in their abilities and skills in the areas of Science, Technology,

Engineering, and/or Math. They have actively and positively contributed to addressing technical challenges and to the overall the mission of NASA.

- Strategic Partnerships - Exemplary performance by an individual to establish or strengthen strategic partnerships with non-NASA entities which leverage emerging capabilities within the U.S. and abroad to significantly impact and advance the achievement of aeronautics research and development goals and objectives, generate robust and timely knowledge transfer, and strengthen trust and credibility with U.S. and foreign partners. For example, these efforts could result in significantly increased quality of NASA Research Announcements or other collaborative agreements.

Individual nominees will be accepted for all categories. Groups may be nominated for Technical and Innovation and the Program and Mission Support categories only.

ELIGIBILITY:

All NASA civil servants and contractors engaged with ARMD projects are eligible to apply or be nominated for all award categories, except the High Potentials category, which is limited per the award category description above.
